

Maximizing the Performance of the GoldRush AutoTrader

To maximize the performance of the GoldRush AutoTrader, here are a set of rules, tips, and suggestions for success. Follow these exactly as written, and do not deviate, to see the best results possible.

Rule #1: Start with the Right Balance

Begin with at least a $1,000 starting account balance, or as close to $1,000 as possible. This balance allows the GoldRush AutoTrader to perform optimally and manage trades effectively.

Rule #2: Use it During High-Impact Sessions

The GoldRush performs best during high-impact news sessions. The optimal times to run the bot are Monday and Friday mornings during the London and New York sessions.

- Before going to sleep Sunday night (around 9–10 p.m.), turn the AutoTrader on and leave it running. It will catch:
 - The London Session (1–2 a.m. EST)
 - The New York Session (6–8 a.m. EST)
- Repeat this Thursday night for Friday morning trading.

This strategy has produced the strongest results for many clients. For example, a client named Isaac followed this process and saw an $11,000 day by catching the high-impact news move on Friday.

Rule #3: Manage Greed and Take Profits

When your account is up anywhere between 50%–100% or more, withdraw your profits and reset your account back to the starting balance. The clients who experience losses typically let trades ride too long, trying to gain more, rather than locking in profits.

Example: Isaac withdrew $10,000 in profits and left only his initial starting balance in the account. Whether his next trade wins or loses, he's still secured nearly 900% growth.

Rule #4: Do Not Tamper with the Bot

Leave the presets exactly as they are. Do not:

- Close trades manually
- Adjust lot sizes
- Change settings

All successful clients follow the presets as provided without interference.

Rule #5: Run it Only Twice a Week

Gold typically consolidates during Tuesday, Wednesday, and parts of Thursday, making it less ideal for trading. Running the bot on Monday and Friday during the optimal sessions ensures the best performance and reduces exposure during less active markets.

Summary

- Start with at least $1,000.

- Run the bot only Monday and Friday during London/New York sessions.
- Take profits when up significantly and reset to your starting balance.
- Do not tamper with the presets.
- Avoid running the bot during consolidating midweek markets.

Follow these steps and you'll maximize the performance of your GoldRush AutoTrader.
